

For Immediate Release

Contact: Elise Camuso
(770) 424-3535
elisec@velociteach.com

VELOCITEACH AWARDED MULTIMILLION FLORIDA BID

Atlanta – February 2, 2007 – Velociteach, a leader in project management training, was selected today by the State of Florida, Department of Management Services, Division of State Purchasing, in a multi-state purchasing agreement with NASPO, (National Association of State Purchasing Officials), as a vendor for a multimillion dollar five year project management training contract. Velociteach will provide Project Management Professional (PMP) certification training for the State and other eligible government users throughout the State of Florida along with fifteen (15) participating states.

Velociteach bested other education heavyweights in a lengthy bidding process where numerous dimensions of the competing training providers were evaluated, measured, and ranked.

“We are very excited about this new partnership with Florida,” said Velociteach CEO, Andy Crowe, “We have been training in the State of Florida for several years now, and this is a great validation of the quality of the work we’ve done. We will be expanding our role and our staff as part of this deal, but we have been in an expansion mode almost since our doors opened.”

Project management certification has been mandated by law in the state of Florida, for all employees who negotiate multimillion dollar projects on behalf of the state.

Chris Goethe, who led Velociteach’s negotiating team, said, “This was a David and Goliath story from the beginning. We were competing against organizations that were, not only much larger in size, but had also been in the project management training business a longer period of time. Instead of letting our size become a liability, we turned it to our advantage. We were able to make decisions on the spot and put together creative solutions to meet Florida’s needs.”

This contract makes Velociteach one of the preferred project management certification training providers for the State of Florida.

Velociteach is an Atlanta based company passionate about the dissemination of best practices in project management. Their 3 Day PMP training class, combined with e-learning platform, InSite, lead the industry in innovation and results.

###

If you would like more information about Velociteach, or to schedule an interview with CEO, Andy Crowe, call Elise Camuso at (888) 568-2527 x106, or e-mail elisec@velociteach.com.